The Wait is Over

“I am the change that I want.”

We want a change but keep on waiting for it.

We are waiting for someone to take the plunge, while we prefer to be a spectator.

If you have self-doubt or forgotten what's hidden deep inside you—you aren't alone.

Every great person once was ordinary. They changed the world because they stood for the value they believed.

It's not too late for anyone. The time is perfect to bring positive change. Past can't be changed but a better future relies on the present we have. Today's effort will be the reflection of the future. The future will be great or worse—depends on each one of us.

Let's begin the journey, to explore the potential each one of us possess—to bring out positive changes in the world.

Who Am I?

I am the change that I want.

I am a part of 7 billion.

A better
change starts with me
the present is with me
and the future because of me.

I own the power to be the change
in my own life
in my families life
in my friend's and their families life
in society, nation and on the planet.

I am like a drop of water, but it's what sea made of.
My journey begins with a drop of rain.
I get support, to form a lake or a river.
When I am a lake, I nourish and support ecosystem.
When I am a river, ecosystem flourishes wherever I flow.
When I meet the sea, I help it to spread its horizon.
My journey—from a drop to be a sea.

I am like a ray of sunlight
holds the power to create life.

Apart from that,
I am a part of many families, a nation, and the planet.

I accept no limits.
I own the possibilities and it's my duty to serve wherever I go.
People around the world are my friend whom I haven't met or spent time yet.

When everyone is part of my world
it's my responsibility to spread the best of my potential.
Even I own the charm to befriend acquaintance.

I am

the rebel

the misfits

the troublemaker

the philosopher

and the change.

I believe in change

ready to give everything to make things right

and to take the first step towards the change.

I am in the dept of the nation and the planet

who provided me the opportunity and the resource

and giving back is my honor.

I got best due to someone's effort in the past and it's my responsibility to make other's future better.

I am equally important like other people in history or in present to make a change.

I may perish but
my contribution will keep on flourishing the future.

I believe in learning
to spread the knowledge
and bring better changes in someone's life.

The Problem

I hold a revolution inside me
but I am breaking apart.

Instead of being the part of 7 billion
I consider myself alone.

Got divided into different regions
not a big deal but sometimes I make it.

Claims to know about the universe
but know a little about myself and others.

I am not taking the initiative to make the changes
of what I am potential of.

Born to be the best in the history
yet keep on searching for the best in history.

Sparks flow inside me seeing other's courage and achievement
but I don't take the plunge to make other proud.

I don't take action at the right time
and regret the missed opportunity.

Own the power to bring better change
but stay absent were possibilities are available.

Wellness and happiness of my dear ones are at stake
still, I stay absent.

The responsibility to be a positive change is in my hand
but I lack the effort to take the first step.

The first step should be easy
but the excuse is costing me, my dear ones, the whole society.

I am destined to be a legend
yet waiting for someone to make the move and with the same belief, everyone is waiting for that someone.

My great art, my existence is at stake
the single reason not taking the first step.

With the death of my legend
who didn't got the opportunity to grow
the person to suffer is not only me it's even
the present and the future.

Responsibility

To change the world, the start should be from the nation to change the nation, the start should be from own society to change the society, the start should be from own home
and to change the home, the start should be from oneself.

To inspire someone, be the source of inspiration
to be the source of inspiration, be ready to take the first step.

I know the crises are rising but when we start taking actions
that moment revolution will start and with the start of the revolution, everything will be possible.

A single person can't directly change billion people's life
but the effort to help own family and friends and letting them spread the message
will make the everything possible.

We have limited time
but the network will grow
the message will spread like fire
the revolution will take place
when we start taking own responsibility to make one's family and friends life better.

The New Beginning

Let the wait for the change ends
and you be the change in someone's life.

Let it be you who
responsible for positive changes
in family, friends and their families life

Let it be you who
plays an active role
in improving society, nation, and the world.

Let it be you who transform people's health, well-being, happiness, prosperity

because life is great when we are happy together.

Be the spark who energizes and motivates the whole generation.

Be the legend whom you wanted to meet.

Be the legend, the gift, the motivator, the source of change
if not for the billions but for a handful of people and inspire them to be the same in someone's life.

Let the revolution of caring, helping, and a great generation
starts from you and keep spreading for the good.

The real Legend in you is waiting to emerge and spread like fire to create better future and leave a legacy.

Don't wait for the right moment
take charge of even the smallest opportunity
the inner legend needs food of opportunity to grow
give it whenever possible and let it grow.
